

LOVE and MARRIED LIFE

by the noted author
Idah McGlone Gibson

THE ISSUE.

"These are Ruth Gaylord's children," I said to John in explanation, hoping he would say something that would show he was a little envious.

"Well, they are some children I should say," he remarked as he picked up Ruth and sat her on his shoulder. Immediately the hands of both the little boys slipped into mine and we started up the quiet village street, Ruth making gurgling, happy noises as she plucked her fingers into John's hair to support herself on his shoulder.

Slyly I looked at him when his face was turned away from me and he certainly was good to look at. A great big, handsome chap. All the love that I had had for him before I married him came pouring back into my heart.

John didn't say very much until we put the children down at the gate, and then he turned to me and remarked inquiringly:

"Alice wired me you were very ill."

"Alice not frightened over nothing," was my answer.

"What do you think about your new house?" he asked again, dismissing the subject of my illness with no further concern.

"I expect it is very beautiful," I said. "I was never in it but once, the exterior and grounds are lovely."

"Then you are going home with me to put it in shape," he asserted rather than asked, and he slipped his hand under my arm and into my hand.

"No," I answered.

In a moment everything was changed. The gray look spread down on John's face and almost unconsciously he let go my arm, which he had been holding caressingly under his.

He stopped just in front of the gate to the house and said:

"Katherine, do you intend never to live with me again?"

And I answered:

"What do you mean?"

"What do you mean by saying you don't know? Are you a child that doesn't know its mind? Or has your mind gone stale? I confess I do not understand. You told me once you loved me. Do you feel the same about me now as you did then?"

I hesitated a moment before I spoke and then I answered:

"Yes, it is because I love you so much, John, that I am contemplating not living with you."

"Rubbish," he exclaimed. "Now don't go off on that tangent again. I am sick and tired of introspection, re-inspection and analysis, which gets us only to which and wherefore. Haven't you realized yet that no man ever wants to analyze love? He only wants to make it."

"And not always to his wife," I said.

"That's true," he answered promptly.

"Then this is right," I asserted as I put the anonymous letter in his hand. He read it and the veins stood out in his temples.

"I had never seen him so angry," "The she devil," I heard him whisper under his breath. "I will pay her out for this."

"Oh, John, you need not pay anyone for it. I don't think Elizabeth Moreland is any more to blame than you are in the matter."

"How do you know that it is Elizabeth Moreland?" he asked quickly.

"I can't just tell, but I know that it is Elizabeth Moreland, just as you know it is she."

Talks in Rough Tones.

"I don't know anything about it," he said roughly. "If you are going to allow every anonymous letter writer to put you on the gridiron, I am sure I don't know how I can help you."

I had just given you this letter so that you may make a decision."

"What kind of a decision?" he asked.

"This letter says that you do not care for me; that you only are nice to me now because mother's little bequest happened to turn itself into a great deal of money."

"I have known letters to lie," he said.

"That is just what I want to find out. Is this the truth or is it a lie?"

Sister Mary's Kitchen

In the kitchen of her own home Sister Mary cooks daily for a family of four adults. She brought to her kitchen an understanding of the chemistry of cooking, gained from study of domestic science in a state university. Consequently the advice she offers is a happy combination of theory and practice. Every recipe she gives is her own, first tried out and served at her family table.

Strawberries are a rather tender fruit called by dealers "softo."

The care the housekeeper gives the fruit after it comes to her greatly determines the attractiveness of it. Strawberries always need thorough washing and if very sandy sometimes need to stand in water for a few minutes to loosen the grains of sand. Water poured directly over berries will crush them and make them soft and mushy.

An easy way to wash berries of any sort is to hull the fruit into a colander. Place the colander in a big pan of fresh water and gently lift and lower the berries into and out of the water. This causes a swishing of the water that has not enough force to hurt the fruit but does dislodge any particles of dirt.

Menu for Tomorrow

Breakfast—Baked rhubarb with raisins, scrambled eggs, toast, coffee.

Luncheon—Scalloped celery, bean rolls, cup cakes with vanilla icing.

Dinner—Pork tenderloin, Frenched, creamed potatoes, string beans, orange salad, prune whip, coffee.

My Own Recipes

In this dinner the dessert furnishes the greatest amount of protein. The meat, of course, gives a certain amount of protein, but it also furnishes fat and bulk, bulk in that it satisfies the appetite. The orange salad cuts the fat and supplies mineral. As pork is a hard food to digest, the amount eaten needs to be small and the necessary vitamins are supplied in the other foods.

2 cups celery diced in inch pieces
1 cup celery stock
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1-2 cup chopped cheese
1 cup fine bread crumbs
1-4 cup coarse buttered crumbs
Salt and pepper

Cook celery in water to cover until tender. Save 1 cupful of celery stock and add to milk. Melt butter, add flour and slowly add liquid, stirring constantly. Add salt, pepper, cheese and celery. Line a buttered baking dish with fine bread crumbs. Add a layer of celery, a layer of crumbs and so on until all is used. Cover with buttered crumbs and brown in a hot oven.

Never Fail Icing

White 1 egg
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon water
1 teaspoon vanilla

Put white of egg, sugar and water in top of double boiler. Set over boiling water and beat with a dower beater for 4 minutes. Remove from heat and spread on cakes.

How Sinti, Tricky Giant, Tricked Himself by Being Lazy

BY CHIEF TAHAN.

Sinti, the long-legged giant, was out on the prairie hunting one day. Suddenly he saw Settlin (the bear) sitting on a hill beside the body of a buffalo which he had killed.

"Hah!" said Sinti to himself, "here I get some buffalo meat without going to the trouble of killing a buffalo myself."

Sinti crept up behind Settlin and gave his loudest war whoop. That frightened the bear so that he jumped clear over the buffalo.

"Gr-r-r-r!" growled the bear as he stood up on his hind feet and showed his teeth. "I feel like eating you."

"Oh, don't feel bad in your heart," said Sinti. "Now my friend, let us have a little jumping match. The one of us who can jump over the buffalo lengthwise can have it. You take the first jump, too."

The bear stood up on his hind feet, backed off, gave a little run and jumped.

"Whuh!" he grunted as he came down on the middle of the buffalo.

"Heh! heh!" laughed Sinti. "That was a good jump for you to make, but watch this!"

At the last word Sinti stooped low, leaped clear over the buffalo and never touched a hair.

"Heh! heh!" again laughed the giant, "how very easy it is for me to get buffalo meat. Now Settlin, my friend," said he, "you stay here and watch the buffalo while I fetch my wife and children to a feast."

When the giant returned with his family expecting to have a fine feast, Settlin was gone, and in the place where Sinti had left the buffalo, there was only a pile of his bones. Wolves had eaten the meat. When Sinti's wife saw the bones she became angry. She picked up one bone after another and threw them at her husband.

"Take that!" and that," she cried, "you are a lazy, dishonest hunter. You thought to get meat without killing it yourself. And now because you are tricky we all have to go hungry. This is what happens to all lazy tricksters. They always trick themselves."

NO CHEAP SUGAR FOR SALT LAKE

Amalgamated Allotment to Be Sold Only in Ogden Territory

SALT LAKE, May 18.—None of the sugar placed on the market by the Amalgamated sugar company at $13.73 a hundred pounds will be distributed to Salt Lake grocers, according to an announcement made yesterday by James Astle, secretary of the Utah-Idaho Wholesale Grocers' association, who made the following statement:

"Requests from retail houses for this sugar have poured in upon local jobbers. 'Salt Lake consumers have been waiting for an opportunity to purchase some of this cheap sugar. This is a false hope. Four hundred bags of this sugar was allotted to Salt Lake jobbers, but the consignment is to be sold in Amalgamated territory, which does not extend farther south than Ogden. Salt Lake is in the territory of the Utah-Idaho Sugar company. The sugar allotted to Salt Lake firms has practically all been sold within the Amalgamated territory."

"Beet sugar is selling to Salt Lake retailers at $24.50 a bag and cane at $2.60."

Stephen H. Love, sales manager of the Utah-Idaho Sugar company, said that the Utah-Idaho company was under no agreement that would keep the sugar allotted by the Amalgamated out of Salt Lake.

"As far as the Utah-Idaho is concerned, the company is not trying to have the sugar garred from Salt Lake, and is under no agreement with the Amalgamated which prohibits that company from selling its product here," he declared.

Ogden jobbers are now accepting their allotments of the sugar placed on the market at $13.73 by the Amalgamated Sugar company, according to Floyd T. Jackson, special agent, acting in charge of the Salt Lake office of the bureau of investigation of the United States department of justice.

The sugar is selling to the consumer at 16 cents a pound.

While sugar in this territory has so far reached its highest peak at 25 1/4 cents a pound wholesale, telegraphic advice from other parts of the country to the Utah-Idaho Sugar company, show a continuous rise far above the Salt Lake price. From Oklahoma City come quotations of 29 cents wholesale.

The same is true of Omaha, while in Kansas City the wholesale price has gone as high as 30 cents and about 33 cents retail. At Dallas, Texas, sugar has been retailing at 30 to 32 cents, while in Des Moines, Iowa, the whole-salers are getting 30 cents per pound.

The telegrams giving these quotations state that all trade is most sparingly supplied even at these figures.

AUSTRIANS UNITE IN OPPOSING PEACE TREATY

BUDAPEST, May 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—The socialist and nationalist parties in protest against the allied peace treaty. In a resolution passed the social democrats said that the treaty is not just and that it does not fulfill the ideals of a true peace. Unless unexpected events arise, Premier Apponyi and other peace delegates will proceed to Paris this week with instructions to sign the document.

There are signs of a conflict in the national assembly between nationalists and peasants, the latter being fearful of a return of former Emperor Charles to power. Therefore they are trying to overturn the coalition and to form a peasant government.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.—Advertisement.
